

Crazy About You

Abe Parker

I keep drinking coffee shaking and it's only 9 am
Wishing you were here to tell me stop and hold my shaking hand
You should quit your job and maybe we could run away to Sao Paulo

You say yes when I propose while we're still flying on a plane
We get married on the beach and I start thinking this is strange
Why do I hear my alarm? And why is everything stuck in slo-mo

Then I wake up and realize

I'm daydreaming of you before we even meet
Writing novels in my head of how it should all be
Guess it feels nice to make believe
That I'm happy for once
Oh I'm floating on a cloud that's not really there
Pull a dopamine hit right out of thin air
No you're not real but I don't really care
Cause I'm crazy... about you

Have a heart to heart with my passenger seat on my commute
Pretend that I make you blush every time that I look at you
People at the traffic light keep staring but I don't really notice

Cause fantasy hurts me way less
Than the memories of rebound regrets
Hung on empty walls of an apartment
And I don't what to do

Cause sanity's all I've got to lose
But I'm still

Daydreaming of you before we even meet
Writing novels in my head of how it should all be
Guess it feels nice to make believe
That I'm happy for once
Oh I'm floating on a cloud that's not really there
Pull a dopamine hit right out of thin air
No you're not real but I don't really care
Cause I'm crazy... about you

I wanna know
Why I'm so bad at being alone
You'd think I'd have it down after this time
Tuck myself in and turn off the light
Stare at the fan and try not cry
Just give it ten more minutes and I'll be fine
When I start

Daydreaming of you before we even meet
Writing novels in my head of how it should all be
Guess it feels nice to make believe
That I'm happy for once
Oh I'm floating on a cloud that's not really there
Pull a dopamine hit right out of thin air
No you're not real but I don't really care
Cause I'm crazy... about you

I'm crazy... about you
