

Elestial

Abigail Williams

She spoke of a time before the land was weary
Before the earth was purified
By the edicts of flame and consumed
By the conspiring tides
As the clock winds down once again
And the timeline forks,
Expand or expire,
Transform or fly away like leaves in the denying winds