Abstract

Yeah

She heard I'm back about my biz
If you see me out on Broadway in that broad day, zip your lips
Got my shine back, apologies it took so long to find that Grippin' on some hips, she got a CDL to drive that I've had way too many run-ins with what Satan tempted
Know the light I'm known for shining calls for drastic methods
Vision said it, know this strength is what invites a challenge
Only killed a version of me, finally found a balance
Finally found a balance

Yeah

Take me to that edge, show me my real friends
If it ain't for life, you can let that end
Let 'em know I'm good, livin' like I should
Don't tell me it's forever while you're knockin' on my wood
Tell me when it gets tough, that we'll get closer
Tell me when the lights dim and the show's over
Tell me when you really know it's true
I don't play when I make claims, can't just be some words to you, yeah

Know I've done my best to lend my chest to hollow hosts
Lookin' back on facts of what it was, I'm feelin' gross
Can't believe I spent the time sacrificin' peace of mind
Looked away from every sign, reopenin' these wounds of mine
Back to grind, can't wait for them to see me shine
Know you saw the glow or you'd have pulled this on some other guy
Why? this for everyone who's robbed me of my time
You can make me late, but know, regardless, one day I'll arrive
I know how the universe provides when I have open eyes
Knock me off my frequency and mountains move to realign
Me within my purpose, send your curses, me and God are good
What's within me, few have found in churches, or misunderstood
All my life, I've tried to do what's right despite the common ploys
Manipulators, liars, and deceivers seem too overjoyed
To question all my virtues, as if breakin' me would break a smile
Trust me, you gon' have to wait a while
Trust me, you gon' have to wait a while

Let's go
