

Landing

Abstract

When I found you, I was searching for answers
I also had a point where all I had known was flipped upside down
The existence I thought I was meant for proved to be only temporary
I come from a place very far from here
But part of the same dark sky that surrounds us now
You provide hope and light for your people through this art you've shown me
Maybe I can do the same?
Create a beautiful beacon in the darkness
A vision put to a planet's canvas
I will construct it myself-call my world Moon 52
Thank you, Luke
Thank you for what you've shown me here today
Though it's been incredibly bizarre
I've learned a lot about myself through this, so
I should be thanking you
You will be sending me back to my body, correct?
Oh, yes-promptly
Just say the word and you should be back on your craft
You should be landing any moment
Thank you
I do have one question though
At the beginning of this-why the primary colors?
The complete explanation is for another meeting
But in short, it's the way you perceived the initial dive
I was looking for your most honest, truest qualities
The things that really make you-you
Both as a member of your human race and as an individual
I believe those three primary colors are as innate to life as you are
We're not sure of their true origin
But every experience you've observed is presented to you as a mixture of the m
And everything you are is a mixture of the experiences you've observed
They are the pallet from which your existence is painted
Speaking of which, it's time I find my canvas
Though, I know I brought you here against your will
And I fully apologize
May I call you... friend?
Well, you basically abducted me
My mind, at least
But you do now know me more than most people, so, yeah, friend
I wish you the best on your venture, I hope to see it one day
I bid you farewell, friend
I will carry you with me always
I wish you a life full of love
And remember, time is not your enemy
Time is an opportunity
I, too, wish you the best of luck wherever your art takes you

We would like to welcome you to Seattle where the local time is 10: 30 a.m
Please be sure to make sure you have all of your belongings before exiting t he cabin
Thank you for flying with us, we hope to see you again soon

I had the strangest dream
(Upload complete, Ms. Watson)
I thought you were sending me back?
I did

But I'm still here?

I told you, I will carry you with me always
