

Midnight

Acceptance

I gave my word to you
I said that I'd stay true
It's midnight and I remember
The pain you put me through

You needed something new
Baby, that's just not true
It's midnight wherever you are
And I can't feel a thing

And the city lights coming down on me
They show my faults like a silver screen
And I'm contemplating, what I heard you saying

Forgive me one more time, I'm only living
Well there's something on my mind

You know I got to think it over
And I won't do it till I'm sober
I always thought that we get older, older

You know I got to think it over
And I won't do it till I'm sober
And I'll want to do is hold her, hold her

I just need to leave you
I'm tripping over ways to keep you
I just need to ease you gently, gently

Something been off here all along
Would you agree, you're just too slow to see it, I guess I'd never seen it

She played her part so perfectly
How could miss it, how could I never see, I guess I'll never see it

And the city lights coming down on me
There's a silhouette who I used to be

I hope I get another chance to take
Cause you won't break down, cause you won't break me down

You know I got to think it over
And I won't do it till I'm sober
I always thought that we get older, older

You know I got to think it over
And I won't do it till I'm sober
And I'll want to do is hold her, hold her

I just need to leave you
I'm tripping over ways to keep you
I just need to ease you gently, gently

Is it midnight where you are?
Time stops, we start over
