

Lonely World

Acres

Hello, how you been?
I guess now ignorance is your best friend
I wondered when I would see you again
And I've been okay
Or maybe I've been feeling lost, and had nowhere to turn, I was afraid
What was your reason?
You say that sometimes I can get too much
But sometimes I've been

Living in a lonely world
I watched all the colours as they start to burst
For something that's so beautiful
Can you imagine if we let it all just fall apart?

And I feel ashamed that I'm still healing
I guess that maybe I should get some help
Or maybe you should have been a better friend
Thank you for leaving
I had some time to clear my head so I could push you out of it

The things we do, to feel alive when we've got nothing to lose
I sold my soul, under the pressure of the things you do (I've been)

Living in a lonely world
I watched all the colours as they start to burst
For something that's so beautiful
Can you imagine if we let it all just fall apart?
(All just fall apart)

And I take back all of the things I said before you were gone
Like all the times you watched me burn when I was falling apart
I hope you choke on your excuses and think about all of the things
You've done that are wrong

Living in a lonely world
I watched all the colours as they start to burst
For something that's so beautiful
Can you imagine if we let it all just fall apart?

(The things we do, to feel alive when we've got nothing to lose
)
All just fall apart
(I sold my soul, under the pressure of the things you do)
All just fall apart