

Rewind the Tape

Adept

Remember back in school we used to talk about
When we redeem in ten years
Seems like everyone took one step forward
While we took two steps back
It's not like I'm asking them to wait up it's just Don't you have a feel like rewinding the fucking tape?

Let's make a toast to the past
Even though we knew at heart
That it wouldn't last
I'm holding on to the memories
Do I have the best years behind me?
I feel the time is running out
We grew up, move on and never looking back
And I guess I'm scared that my life can't go back to those days when we were young and fucking careless

We had the world right in front of us Planned out, all set and we were young at heart
But as time goes by I believe that the world is fucking spinning and it tears us apart

I'm waiting on the next wave from my life
To sweep me off my feet
I can barely hold on for myself
What about my dreams?
What about my dreams?
It's the illusion of being free
It wraps up around me it holds me down and takes the breath right of me

The hands of time is slowly tearing everything apart
Will we stand together?

Do you remember all these years ago?
shooting stars above, we're laying down below
I remember our conversations
We lived our lives in our imaginations
The sand is pouring through the hourglass
We're stuck at the bottom with no turning back
At least for me Cause all I can see is the memories of everything I wished we could be I'm holding on to the thought of who we used to be

I used to be the one that you'd turn to
When your days were rough

We were young at heart
Careless and free
I miss the kids we used to be

I used to be the one that you'd turn to

When your days were rough

We were young at heart
Careless and free
I miss the kids we used to be

Do I have the best years of my life right behind me?

The hands of time is slowly tearing everything apart
Will we stand together?
Let us see another day
We were young and reckless
And nothing would hold us down
I miss the kids we used to be

Nothing in this world will hold us down
Nothing in this world will hold us down