

Lost And Found

Adrienne Pierce

Eyes like flowers, I love the way you see, you see, you see
You're the best thing that's happened to me
Maybe I should fight harder for you
But I said I'd let go when you wanted me to

Have no power, I see the way you run, you run, you run
As soon as we start to have fun
Maybe I would feel better alone
Or just feel something, my heart is turning to stone

So, so slow
Can you feel me letting go
I, I know that we turn away when the cracks begin to show
And now we're sleeping with the television and all the lights on
One of us is leaving soon, but we're both already gone
Stuck at the lost and found, we watch things disappear
Looking for the missing piece, but it was never here

Every hour, I find a way a way, a way, a way
To convince myself to stay
Back and forth, I can't juggle
Lying here, I need to stand up and struggle

Ivory tower, I know the way you think, you think, you think
It's making my heart sink
Unamused, tired of the antics
Some sick of arguing over semantics

So, so slow
Can you feel me letting go
I, I know that we turn away when the cracks begin to show
And now we're sleeping with the television and all the lights on
One of us is leaving soon, but we're both already gone
Stuck at the lost and found, we watch things disappear
Looking for the missing piece, but it was never here

We're sleeping with the television and all the lights on
One of us is leaving soon, but we're both already gone
Stuck at the lost and found, we watch things disappear
Looking for the missing piece, but it was never here
