Without blindness, there is no sight You'd see further if you'd only close your eyes In unconsciousness I can find peace Inside prison walls I can find release There is a place that I have seen

Somewhere between waking and sleeping Down at the water's edge Somebody waits for me Is it too late for me It's never too late, he says

Without blindness, there is no sight You'd see further if you'd close your eyes Unblock the failure

Without blindness, there is failure People gather by the river They were talking

There is a place that I have seen
Somewhere between waking and sleeping
Leaning over the side
Trailing my fingertips
Feeling the water slip
Into the quiet night

Viewed from the wrong end of a telescope I see myself, so far below Still and silent, rest in peace The thread unravels Merciful release

There is a place that I have seen
Somewhere between waking and sleeping
Now I can almost see
Figures upon the shore
He's gathering in the oars
Where are you taking me
