Moving On

Aisha Badru

I'm glad to see you're finally moving on
Who ever knew mending a heart would take that long
I never thought I would say this to you
She fits you perfectly in ways that I couldn't do

Who am I to say it's not the plan the universe had all along?
How would we have learned all that we have from us
Not getting along?

I hope you're feeling better now these days
And that you have found better ways to cope with your pain
When you would fall you'd call
There wasn't much that I wouldn't do
But you were right it was more for me then it was for you

Who am I to say which way your life should go
And which path you should take?
Who am I to stand between you
And the growth that you get
Learning from your mistakes?
Who are we to say it's not the plan
The universe had all along?
Maybe we crossed paths to help teach each other
To learn how to move on

I'm glad to say we're finally moving on
I hope you feel my gratitude when you hear this song
