

Whitney

Albin Lee Meldau

My baby don't know me anymore
The last time I spoke on the phone I got a shock
She's living life over there
Living life on a subway
And my baby don't love me no more
Oh it hurts but atleast now I'm sure
She never coming back
And life ain't a fairy tale

Hey my love, don't let her love slip away
How could we be nothing?
Hey my love, oh love you're far far away
Don't let us be nothing

My baby's gotta play that show
But she says I don't feel it any more
Hanging on the silver screen
Get a star on the boulevard
But I need the woman in you
No I know seeing the way that you do
Living life station to station
Feeling blue in my [?]

You can try asking Whitney by then
Alone in the bathtub with a pop in the crack
Things are just the same for the king and queen
But you all can crush him on the silver screen
Bloated and empty, they all had a crack
Smaller and empty on a single heart attack

Living life station to station
It ain't no fairy tale
But we used to have something
Now we got nothing
How could we ever be nothing?

Hey my love, don't let her love slip away
How could we be nothing?
Hey my love, oh love you're far far away
Don't let us be nothing

Hey my love, now you're far far away
Don't let us be nothing
