The Same

Alex Clare

Although your past is gone
Although your face is changed
I know that you will always be the same

When I look in the mirror
It ain't any clearer
Than who I see in my minds eye

I need a lot to love you
I don't really trust you
I know you'll make the same mistakes again

You're still the same in many ways my friend
I don't see why I should try to pretend

Although your past is gone
Although your face is changed
I know that you will always be the same

When I try adding up
There really hasn't been enough
Time for you to fix it all

All the broken people
The ones you need to let go
Are where you find your comfort is

Why do you find it so hard to let go
I'm not sure that you'll ever really know

Although your past is gone
Although your face is changed
I know that you will always be the same

You're still the same in many ways my friend
I don't see why I should try to pretend

Although your past is gone
Although your face is changed
I know that you will always be the same
