

Hell Right

Alexandra Kay

Am I talking to you or the paint on the ceiling
Is anyone up there
'Cause it's half past two and I'm half past believing
There's so much that's not fair
And it's heavy, the weight that I carry
The people I've buried
The hate in this world man it's all feeling scary
Oh if you can hear me on the other side

There's a reason I'm going through hell, right?
A reason for all of these long nights
Promise me it'll be alright
And it won't be long 'til you show me the road that I'm on
Is all part of a big plan
'Cause I'm breaking down right where I stand
I'll walk through the tunnel if you tell me that there's a light
There's a reason I'm going through hell, right?

I feel the fire blazing around me
With every breath I'm getting burned
One step at a time but tell me who's countin'
What is it you want me to learn
'Cause I'm washed in the water, still feel like I'm drowning
Are you coming to save me tonight

There's a reason I'm going through hell, right?
A reason for all of these long nights
Promise me it'll be alright
And it won't be long 'til you show me the road that I'm on
Is all part of a big plan
'Cause I'm breaking down right where I stand
I'll walk through the tunnel if you tell me that there's a light
There's a reason I'm going through hell, right?

'Cause it's heavy, the weight that I carry
If it was gonna end like it did
Why'd you let me get married
You watched when it all fell apart
So from the bottom of my broken heart

There's a reason I'm going through hell, right?
Promise me it'll be alright
And it won't be long 'til you show me the road that I'm on
Is all part of a big plan
'Cause I'm breaking down right where I stand
I'll walk through the tunnel if you tell me that there's a light
There's a reason I'm going through hell, right?
Oh yeah
I'll walk through the tunnel
There's a reason I'm going through hell, right?
