

Bystander

Alexz Johnson

She doesn't want to touch that sore
Don't want to talk about it, leave it alone
Winter was the harshest yet
Don't wanna talk about how they left her for dead
But why'd you have to be so bold?
One minute there's a flame now she's out in the cold
It's a familiar scene
She wished it was a dream

Let's go back in time
Make up the rules as it goes
From the pills to wine
We'll tell Rebecca she'll be fine
Scars beneath a new tattoo
We weren't prepared to face the truth
But history repeats
She's a bystander on the street

I wish that you could press rewind
If I rip out all the pages, all will be fine
Being from a town this small
Is there anybody out there? No one at all
But why'd you have to be so cruel?
One minute there's a flame, she's the talk of the school
It's a familiar scene
She wished it was a dream

Let's go back in time
Make up the rules as it goes
From the pills to wine
We'll tell Rebecca she'll be fine
Scars beneath a new tattoo
We weren't prepared to face the truth
But history repeats
She's a bystander on the street

What we know to be true
Is so wrong
It's so wrong
We're trying to swim alone
While we're the one's throwing stones

Make the rules up as we go
Just tell Rebecca she'll be fine
Scars beneath a new tattoo
We weren't prepared to face the truth
But history repeats
She's a bystander on the street
But history repeats
She's a bystander on the street
But history repeats
