

Everything

Alice Merton

I still think about it, night after night
I still hear your voice, it's my lullaby
Like a reoccurring nightmare, tell me "wake up"
But the dream keeps going, the fear keeps spinning, "Wake up"

Wouldn't I be awake to end such a lovely day?
If I could rewind the track
You know that I would, you know that I would

I said some things last night I didn't mean
The words came out, hush like a mad machine
And I was left crying on the bedroom floor
I woke up tired, thinking, "What just happened
Did I pull the last straw?", saw you packing up
Your things, I watched as I lost everything
As I lost everything

I can't think of one nasty thing
To say about you, you win
'Cause all of my life has been
Wishing it was different
It's alright, alright, alright
It'll be alright, alright, alright

And the dream keeps on going, the fear keeps spinning, "Wake up
Yeah, the dream keeps on going, the fear keeps spinning, "Wake up"

Wouldn't I be awake to end such a lovely day?
If I could rewind the track
You know that I would, you know that I would

I said some things last night I didn't mean
The words came out, hush like a mad machine
And I was left crying on the bedroom floor
I woke up tired, thinking, "What just happened
Did I pull the last straw?", saw you packing up
Your things, I watched as I lost everything
As I lost everything

'Cause I lost everything
