Cold wind's blowing, confusions growing
Signs showing nobody's home
Peer through your window, Nothing but an empty soul
Where'd you move, Where'd you go
Am I too late, to stop this
I'm in disbelief, I keep knocking
But the carving in that old oak tree, said forever you and me
The one thing I believed in has failed me

When everyone was looking on the outside in I got to know you behind closed curtains And be the one to make sure that you're safe and warm

How could you leave me, all alone, in the cold, at the door Without a key to your heart  $$

How could you leave me, no goodbye, boy I'm gone, movin on and now my love won't survive

Where can I mail off and send this, pent up emotion, cause you don't live here anymore

How could you leave me, all alone in the cold at the door Without a key to your  $\,$

Heart's pounding, yelling loudly, throwing rocks at your window Trying to kick it, put my, shoulder into it and once more tried the h andle

And the telephone's disconnected, no more electricity, I'm assuming With our prints in the cement, remember when we were six Wish we could be there again

When everyone was looking on the outside in I got to know you behind closed curtains And be the one to make sure that you're safe and warm

How could you leave me, all alone, in the cold, at the door Without a key to your heart  $$

How could you leave me, no goodbye, boy I'm gone, movin on and now my love won't survive

Where can I mail off and send this, pent up emotion, cause you don't live here anymore

How could you leave me, all alone in the cold at the door Without a key to your heart  $$

You said you'd never leave, this home feels so empty Tell me where did you go, go Never saw a moving sign, just locked out wondering why Your heart don't live here no more, How could you
