

Like Thor And Loki

All For Metal

In the ancient days of the Aesir reign
Myths and legends awoke in the north
In this world of heroes, villains and gods
Two brothers remain unforgotten
Their names are
Thor and Loki

One brother is a hero
The other's just a knave
When one is saving Asgard
The other one just craves

One god is full of envy
And one is full of pride
But still their destinies collide

And if they're dying
They're dying in a fight
And when they're fighting
They stand on different sides

Their fate is written
In ancient runes of old
In tales their destiny unfolds

Like Thor and Loki
Like heaven and hell
The hostile brothers
Are under one spell

Of good and evil
The legends will tell
Like Thor and Loki
Like heaven and hell

The two sides of a medal
That's made of hardened steel
As Janus hurts two faces
The rivalry's concealed

So none of them will step back
And neither one gives in
And now, now let the fight begin

And in the fury
Thor's hammer takes its toll
But Loki's sceptre
Might even take control

Their fate is written
In ancient runes of old
In tales their destiny unfolds

Like Thor and Loki
Like heaven and hell
The hostile brothers
Are under one spell

Of good and evil
The legends will tell
Like Thor and Loki
Like heaven and hell

Like Thor and Loki
Like heaven and hell

There are many tales about those two
And many stories yet untold
Their fate tangled in the threads of the Norns
Their names are Thor and Loki

Like Thor and Loki
Like heaven and hell
The hostile brothers
Are under one spell

Of good and evil
The legends won't die
Like Thor and Loki
Like heaven and hell
Like heaven and hell