Door

Allday

If there's a knocking at the door
We'll be just like before
Because no one could take your place

I'm not one to worry, about what is coming
Drinking all my money, when I needed numbing
Didn't have a penny, but my palms were itchy
When we were stoned we figured out the mysteries
(Yeah yeah)
Lose my head sometimes but I do retrieve it
I'll forget the bad times like I've got amnesia
I been asking for you but they haven't seen ya
Round here for a while

If there's a knocking at the door
We'll be just like before
Because no one could take your place

Sometimes, sometimes, it feels so different
Then you come, lift me up, it's like a pill again
You're not one to worry, about what is dawning
Or maybe that's a mask you wear like batman robin
Skidding in a bat mobile all over Gotham
High enough to fly over our problems
Need a space suit, you know what they say too
When you're going through hell, just go straight through
I'll always keep a place for you, isn't it a great view
Looking at you is easy on the eyes

If there's a knocking at the door
We'll be just like before
Because no one could take your place

Sometimes, sometimes, it feels so different
Then you come, lift me up, it's like a pill again

If there's a knocking at the door
We'll be just like before
Because no one could take your place

Sometimes, sometimes, it feels so different
Then you come, lift me up, it's like a pill again
