

Runaway

Allister

Now that the hardest part is done
We'll have to face another one
And figure out what we'll both do and where

Each offer seems to promise new ways to separate us both
And I don't care what others think is best, I can't just watch you go

If we can stick together, we'll never be alone

We'll run away
Just leave this place
If you're here next to me there's nowhere I'd rather be

So we'll start tonight
Just leave behind
The lives we used to know and venture out to make it on our own

It'll just be harder if we wait
More settled in with every day
It makes more sense for us to both start new

And the worst thing I'd imagine is to be stuck like this at home
And it might be rough at first but we'll have stories when we're old

If things start to break, we'll pack up and find another way Settle down again and if it's not working out, we'll just take a different route
