North Point

Allman Brown

Back again
In this city where I used to have friends
That was then
But now I'm just an echo

From someplace long before
Strangers looking back at me
Everywhere I go

Has it been so long since I was young?
Where have all of those years gone to?

Back again
Ten years since we last met
How we've changed
But it still feels the same

When I look into your eyes
I can't escape out bloodline
I'm a child again

Has it been so long since I was young?
Where have all of those years gone to?

In North Point, time stands still
The mirror cracks, I can't go back
In North Point, I look for the sea
I need those waves [?]

Back again
Flying away from this place
How it's changed
But it still feels the same
To leave it all behind
The regrets of my lifetime
Fading in the sky

Has it been so long since I was young?
Where have all of those years gone to?