

Whenever You're Ready

Alpha Wolf

We used to meet the sunrise
Face each other warm and bright
Chase away the darkness and play to life
We could've caught alight

And that's when times, changed
Firstly slowly then, all the same
A chemical imbalance in the brain
In the face of the light we'd made, but it wasn't enough

We found a space between hell and home
And it wasn't enough
We showed love despite ebb and flow
It was never enough

You can break down if you want to
You can stay inside if you need to
I'll be your resting place
Bring you back to me
If you want to
If you need to

There's an ocean of stones unturned
Too many chapters left unread
In the blink of an eye you capsized my entire world

I'll sing your favourite songs
With tears flowing on
Let the pictures sing
Let the pictures sing

You can break down if you want to
You can stay inside if you need to
I'll be your resting place
Bring you back to me
If you want to
If you need to

You can break down if you want to
You can stay inside if you need to
I'll be your resting place
Bring you back to me
If you want to
If you need to

Not enough love in the world
In between hell and home

I couldn't be the light, bright enough to change your mind
Just bright enough to help you see the love you leave when it's over
And it's over