The only thing that we have left to hold In a world gone mad there's nowhere left to go Where nothing lasts there's permanence I know

Is there something I can say?
To bring back what once remained
Where is all that we let go?
Where is home?

Doubt

From inside I hear it calling out Tearing at the truth it must be found In the end it only brings me down

Is there something I can say? To bring back what once remained Where is all that we let go? Where is home?

If you need a reason a reason tonight
To cast every doubt from your heart and your mind
Look to tomorrow and maybe you'll find
Something more. Something more.

Is there something I can say?
To bring back what once remained
Where is all that we let go?
Where is home?
