

Blue Moon

AmaLee

Looking from my seat in the stars
The night is the perfect hiding place
I know there is a cure from this doubt
But I can't find a trace

I've been deceived by every dream
Where you're laughing so radiantly
But no matter how real it might seem
I wake up to real life

Somewhere far in the night music plays passionately
And I feel my cold heart beating in rhythm

I ask you, my Blue Moon
Will you answer me soon?
If I reached out my hand would you hear my plea?
You're always there
Looking over me
Smiling so tenderly
One day will I look behind
And not see you there?

Every second's a grain of sand
That brings life into these days of ours
I'll catch every moment in my hand
And won't let any spill

I will never forget the nights
Where the moon was so displeased with me
I could see the disappearing light
And your defenseless back

Even though
They've healed slow
I've cherished these scars of mine
'Cause they hold some proof of what has remained there

I ask you, my Blue Moon
Why are you fleeting away?
There is someone who has fallen in love with you
Stop right there
Are you aware
As we gaze back on the scene
What has happened to my perfect love story?

I ask you, my Blue Moon
When I look up for your light
Everything has dramatically come to a stop

I beg you, my Blue Moon
Won't you please stop your wailing?
The depth of your pain swallows me whole tonight

I don't care
I am fine, I swear
Anything is worth this love
Even if the heavens burn I'll only think of you

This love of mine will live forever and on through
