

Cross the Line

AmaLee

In each moment, there is life
Blessed and born - a pure light
But as it took a single breath, all life that was lent
Came to end

CROSS THE LINE

Within this world where everything is left in pieces
There's one last wish that has been burnt into my mind

It's a dream that's been warped by sadness
A curse of fate and absurdity, endless
But its resilience remains, as it looks your way

OH OH OH

My white flag pure as snow
I try to throw it down
But suddenly, I'm tangled up in my own destiny

All of the pain my smile failed to erase
Rushes back again and nearly knocks me back
My heart is soaring - Fervently burning
But despite it all, I don't regret it

To protect the people I love
Even one - The strength I have is not enough
The night's approaching, ravenous and cunning
But there is a droplet of hope still shining

This is everything to me
The only thing I need
And I will not betray the crimson oath
That remains deep in my veins