Like a child who keep on crying
Let the tears fall without holding back
I decide, then and there, although it's unclear what awaits
I gaze up faraway into the summer sky

You're always playing it cool while you refuse to show your tears
When really underneath you are afraid
You pray you never will lose all the things you're holding dear
You've been trying desperately to keep them safe

We've been through the worst of it, you and I
I look back on long and lonely nights
From this moment on you don't need to hide away when you are afraid
Not anymore

Like a child who keep on crying
Let the tears fall without holding back
I decide, then and there, although it's unclear what awaits
I gaze up faraway into the summer sky

I willingly fell for their ruse with the words I longed to hear
They compelled the dark in me too easily
Though I swore I never would lose the one thing I'm holding dear
It is you, alone that I had nearly lost

Always scared of believing in anything
I forgot what it felt like to cry
From this moment on the wind is right by our side
It's holding us up high so we can fly

Like a child, I held you tightly
Let me near holding your hand in mine
I decide, then and there, although it's unclear what awaits
We gaze up and aim into the summer sky
We gaze up and race into the summer sky

In a world of vast horizons
It's so easy to feel you're alone
Let me hear every thought and worry in your heart
You may know

Like a child who keep on crying
Let the tears fall without holding back
I decide, then and there, although it's unclear what awaits
I gaze up faraway into the summer sky
I yell out today into the summer sky
