

Meltdown

AmaLee

To the core so I can die (so I can die)
Ahh...
Will still wait for me
Ahh...
Will still wait for me (will still wait for me)

The shining lights
Are filling me with numbness
As they bathe the night
Of this chilly town

Why can't I sleep
It's nearly two A.M
And everyone can't keep
Their sanity

Oil is now running lower than low
And in my heart continuous flames only burn
Is my whole world just made up of lies
I only ask to feel some peace and ease in return

I feel your neck break by my hands in this twisted dream
And a red glow from the sun that covers you completely
As I watch as you lay still unable to scream
Tears in my eyes are painfully disarming me

Take me to the core so I can die
I'll gladly dive in with my headfirst
I wanna fly

As each ray of light surrounds my flight
Enveloping my whole body

Take me to the core so I can die
I'll gladly let you push me headfirst
And then I'd cry

With all these sins that pollute my soul I'll never see a miracle

I hear the sound
Of footsteps running up the stairs
To where this crowd is now heaven bound

The sun's melting
The cloudy skies
And burning through
The window of glass
This afternoon

I watch the sky
As it softens with light
And as it turns bloody red
In the swollen twilight
Is the whole world only dead in my eyes
'Cause all I see are pale unconscious souls as they rise

I feel your neck break by my hands in this twisted dream

And in the wind I'm smelling a fragrance like spring cherry blossoms
My words are spoken by colorless lips that only whisper, desperately trying to scream

Take me to the core so I can die
I'll gladly dive in with my headfirst
I wanna fly

All these memories are whitening
But I don't think it's frightening

Take me to the core so I can die
I'd gladly dive into numbing dreams
So full of tenderness
It's like my younger years
'Cause sleep comes so easily and breezily

Time's ticking by
To the beat of my now restless heart
And I don't know why
The laughs I hear are all fake
Like I'm watching a TV Show
No matter how I beg
The voices won't let go

Allegro, agitate
I don't want the ringing that blurs my pain to stop
Allegro, agitate
I don't want the ringing that blurs my pain to stop

Every soul that is trapped in this broken dream fades away
And at midnight, instead of a prince, I get a throbbing nightmare
The world that I once loved fades to gray

Why can't I breathe?
I'll be born when this world of ours ends
Ah!

Take me to the core so I can die
I'll gladly let you push me headfirst
And then I'd cry

'Cause I'd be gone without any pain while this world circles 'round the drain

All my anger will be gone with me
I won't wonder what the future will be
'Cause by then I'll have found my place as all the gears of my mind combine
The perfect world for which I leave
I do believe
Will still wait for me

Ah...