

Moon Halo

AmaLee

Some deserts on this planet
Were oceans once
Somewhere shrouded by the night
The sun will shine
Sometimes I see a dying bird
Fall to the ground
But it used to fly so high

I thought I were no more than a bystander
Till I felt a touch so real
I will no longer be a transient
When I see smiles with tears
If I had never known the sore of farewell
And the pain of sacrifice
What else should I engrave on my mind?

Frozen into icy rocks
That's how it starts (that's how it starts)
Crumbled like the sands of time
That's how it ends (that's how it ends)
Every page of tragedy
Is thrown away (is thrown away)
Burned out in the flame

A shoulder for the past, let out the cries
Imprisoned for so long
A pair of wings for me at this moment
To soar above this world
Turn into a shooting star that briefly shines
But warms up every heart
May all the beauty be blessed
May all the beauty be blessed

I will never go
There's a way back home
Brighter than tomorrow and yesterday
May all the beauty be blessed

Wave goodbye to the past when hope and faith
Have grown so strong and sound
Unfold this pair of wings for me again
To soar above this world
Turned into a moon that always tells the warmth
And brightness of the sun
May all the beauty be blessed
May all the beauty be blessed
