

Sing

Amber Lawrence

Watching my kids humming in the kitchen Singing their song like their spirit is breathing
I don't want to break it, I listen to them set themselves free
On the street corner, a woman with a guitar Strumming her tunes to the people walking through Is that light in their eyes, shining like they want to join in There is music in our bodies since the day we were born it's ne ver really faded, just give it some sun Stand outside, let the rays soak your skin
And even if nobody's listening, sing
And even if nobody loves you back, love them Live in the moment, take your power and own it Touch it and breathe it in, even if nobody's listening sing
When I was a girl, down and feeling lonely I'd sit in my room a nd press the tape player listen to the lyrics feeling every sin gle word
Deep in my body, my voice started stirring Only for me & I couldn't help but hear it Making me touch a piece of heaven in my empty room Haven't you felt it that way when you were driving Hand out the window, listen to the radio Come on now, lets join in Haven't you heard the gospel choir Singing 'cause it's the only thing that'll take them higher higher higher Even if the world is difficult sing even if when your feeling l onely sing whoa
