

The Honest Truth

Amber Pacific

Oh I'm searching for a time or place
I'm searching so much more
Every second that has gone to waste
Now feeling old and worn
And I might not be the person
That you knew from times before
But I swear that on the surface I felt trapped and insecure

Some days when you're giving up
Won't change because you're still enough
It may be the best is yet to come

Just fight and you'll find where you belong
In this life the only answer is to move along
Cast the demons out inside
Broken bones can heal with time
It won't matter in the end you're going to be alright

I just want to be accepted for the person I've become
Would it ever make a difference if we put the blindfolds on?
I don't mean to be indifferent I just want this to feel real
I'm not living in this prison of how other people deal

Some days when you're giving up
Won't change because you're still enough
It may be the best is yet to come

Just fight and you'll find where you belong
In this life the only answer is to move along
Cast the demons out inside
Broken bones can heal with time
It won't matter in the end you're going to be alright

You're going to be alright
To the friends I may have lost
It never ends, I hate the way this fell apart

Just fight and you'll find where you belong
In this life the only answer is to move along
Cast the demons out inside
Broken bones can heal with time
It won't matter in the end you're going to be alright
It won't matter in the end you're going to be alright
It won't matter in the end please stay tonight