

intro

Amelia Moore

I bleed when my finger's pricked and I'm counting my calories
One time I broke a bone and cried at the gallery
You plug me into your walls and use all my batteries
It's like you're a teddy bear from a metal factory

'Cause while I'm there crying you're exercising your fifth amendment

And you say your heart's beating
Then show me your arteries
I don't believe it
'Cause under the bricks and codes and lack of expression
Oh, there's someone there
There's gotta be

I don't know how to be human
