Can't You See

America

Alone, sitting here on my own There's no place I'd rather be Or so it seems

Home, miles away from home And there's no place I'd rather be Can't you see?

You hold your life in your hands And no one takes from a man Who gives the best that he can To make someone understand

I've flown miles away from home And there's no place I'd rather be Can't you see?

You hold your life in your hands And no one takes from a man Who gives the best that he can To make someone understand

Home, miles away from home
And there's no place I'd rather be
Can't you see

Can't you see, can't you see Can't you see, can't you see Can't you see, can't you see Can't you see, can't you see
