Under a Soil and Black Stone

No longer I was breathing No more bleeding Inside the urn Under a soil and black stone Under a soil and black stone

And I was listening And felt no pain To the sunrise to east I'll leave my grief

To the stars shine Casting my eyes by the long nights Blessed I was To rest then Inside the urn Under a soil and black stone

Soil upon me So fragile As a veil Without secrets The staring Space so wide

Amorphis