

100 Whales

An Horse

Like 100 whales through the water,
You know you had me in that corner,
You had me in that corner,
You had me in that corner.

There's at least a hundred pages I ought to Burn before I can read what I wrote about you,
What I wrote about you,
What I wrote about you.

But tonight, I'm thinking of someone else,
And I can't help myself,
No, I can't help myself.

There's at least ten times I've spoken to you,
And I've never said things I wanted to,
Said things I wanted to,
Said things I wanted to.

Play it close to the waist coat,
'Cause there's always someone you know,
Who's trying to catch someone out,
Who's trying to catch someone out.

But tonight, I'm thinking of someone else,
And I can't help myself,
No, I can't help myself.

Yeah, tonight, I'm thinking of someone else,
And I can't help myself,
No, I can't help myself.

But the difference between you and me is that I know when I shouldn't speak,
And you don't know when to hold your peace,
And you don't know when to hold your peace.
Black jack waistcoat in my face,
Farewell to you my lovely,
Farewell to you my lonely.

'Cause tonight, I'm thinking of someone else,
And I can't help myself,
No, I can't help myself.

Yeah, tonight, I'm thinking of someone else,
Which in a round about way, means I've thought about you all day.
