

Quest For Blood

Ancient Rites

"Inspired by the Great French Poet BAUDELAIRE.
Very 19th Century like indeed.
Vampires Are Forever but Somehow seemed to be more Alive and Real during the Golden Age of Poetry and Literature.
First (French) part is directly taken from the master's Work
"Le Vampire"."

Toi, Qui comme un Coup de Couteau
Dans mon Coeur Plaintif est Entrée
Toi, Qui Fort comme un Troupeau
De Démons, Vins, Folle et Parée
To make out of my Humiliated Spirit
Your bed and your Domain
Honourless Crook to Whom
I am Connected Like a Slave to his Chain, Like a stubborn Player to the Game, Like a Drink to the Battle,
Like a Maggot to the Corpse
Maudite! Maudite Soit-Tu!
I have prayed the Rapid Sword
To Conquer my Freedom
Hélas! The Poison and the Sword
Took me with Despise and Told Me:
"You Are Worthly,
YOU ARE NOT WORTHY!
To be Liberated of You Slavery!!!
If our Efforts would Free Thee
Your Kisses would Awake,
The Remains of Your Vampire Within,
YOUR VAMPIRE WITHIN!!!"
Maudite! Maudite!...
