

Horizon

Andrew Belle

Father

I do not hope to be a bother
Could I have taken any longer
Could I have made it any wronger

Moment

Yeah for a minute I was hopin'
That there exists some kind of potion
I didn't choose you, I was chosen
Oooh

From the Earth to your eyeline

I attempt to follow
In your horizon
It comes for me

Climbin'

You're coming over uninvited
The mathematics I decided
Had got me living on an island

Goner

What if the answers point you farther?
If our reflections in the water
Are only something only we can charter
When we're together

As the world goes by

As the thread unravels
I will set my eyes
On the road less traveled by
Towards your horizon

Fire

How I forget that you're a liar
Your regulation has expired
I'm pullin' over cause I'm tired

Honest

Somebody told me you're the smallest
I get this feeling every August
I barter longer for the longest when I remember

As the world goes by

As the thread unravels
I will set my eyes
On the road less traveled by

As the world goes by

As the thread unravels
I will set my eyes
On the road less traveled by
Towards your horizon