

Learn to Dance

Andrew McMahon in the Wilderness

Another set of white lines
Followed until the morning
Another deep end, deep end dive
Into a cold pool cut with chlorine

When we had to shake the shadow
Of a spirit drifting
And learned to dance in a world where there's no tomorrow
Let's learn to dance in a world where there's no tomorrow
No tomorrow

You can learn to dance
You can learn to dance
You can learn to dance
In this world you can learn to dance when there's no tomorrow
You can learn to dance
You can learn to dance
You can learn to dance
In this world we can learn to dance when there's no tomorrow

She was my twin sister
We saw the world through different lenses
Thought we found forgiveness
Then cut her hands and her arms on our mended, mended fences

But she learned to dance
But she learned to dance
You can learn to dance
In this world you can learn to dance when there's no tomorrow
You can learn to dance
You can learn to dance
You can learn to dance
In this world we can learn to dance when there's no tomorrow

Now we live our own lives
But in the night when my spirits drifting
And I come up from the deep end dive
I see the eyes of my unborn children
And I'm filled with the love I will give them
Cause it's the love I was given
It's the love we were given
It's the love I will give them
To teach them

So they learn to dance
So they learn to dance
You can learn to dance
In this world you can learn to dance when there's no tomorrow
You can learn to dance
You can learn to dance
You can learn to dance
