Firefly

Anekdoten

Sparks flying through the room my head's on fire and there is nothing i can do i'm in the whirlwind far beyond reach i wish that you would be here too Fading fire the wakened eye soon turning blue again For all gone before all left undone

put down your walking-stick and run i'm on a blind-ride
all screens are blank looking forward running back

And all is one to each his own all is one

But i am alone as i run through the fire
