Memory Palace

Angelo De Augustine

On my own
I've got nowhere to roam
Options disappearing
Reveling in oblivion
Voices calling the game
I lent them my name with desire to know
How long will you endure
If you're all I'm waiting for

Earth and loam
Love held captive in stone
That memory palace
Left you callused and out of control
Voices divine and deranged waged war on the page
Will their wisdom bestow
A life where we find out
Why you're all I dream about?

Now that all the songbirds have let you down
As the silence offers to turn you around
Where your innocence has died I'll leave an open door

If you're all I'm dreaming of
If you're all I'm dreaming of
If you're all I'm dreaming of
Then what are you waiting for?
Yes, what are you waiting for?
Yes, what are you waiting for?

Mausoleum
Life inscribed into stone
Malice counterbalanced
A millennium regrettable
Voices frail and vain slept in the wind and the rain
Laid to rest evermore
No hurt left to endure
Being all I've waited for

Now that all the songbirds have let you down
As the silence offers to turn you around
Where your innocence has died I'll leave an open door

If you're all I'm dreaming of
If you're all I'm dreaming of
If you're all I'm dreaming of
Then what are you waiting for?
Yes, what are you waiting for?
Yes, what are you waiting for?
