

Making It Through

Angie McMahon

Morning, I woke up with a view of the moon
To untangle my shoulders, a sleepy balloon
I'm celebrating making it through
Just making it through
When I grow up, I wanna be like a tree
And change with the seasons, helping people breathe
But all I've achieved lately is making it through
Just making it through

I froze on the spot where you left me
To hold everything still worth protecting
I know now at the end of the ending
That just making it through was the lesson
Just making it through

I didn't know then
That out of ash and destruction
The ground will grow things
I was trying so hard to stay still, terrified that I'd kill something

I froze like the whole world was ending
Exposed holding my panic, pretending
And I know now that we needed that ending
You were never gonna stay
And just making it through is okay

Time is supposed to run out, time is supposed to Sun is supposed to go down, sun is supposed to
Like your mood, like your power, like your battery
Rise, fall, rise
Life, death, life again
Sky, ground, sky
Day, night, day again
Rise, fall, rise
Life, death, life again
Sky, ground, sky
Light, dark, light again

Light, dark, light again
Light, dark, light again
Light, dark, light again
Light, dark, light again...

Time to release every breath I held in
Loosen my limbs, I can dance now, I'm dancing
Time to release every breath I held in
Loosen my limbs, I can dance now
Dance with nothing to prove
Dance, now, dance with nothing to prove
Dance now, dance

Light, dark, light again
Light, dark, light again
Light, dark, light again
Light, dark, light again...
