Wooden Chair

Angus Stone

My old wooden chair In amongst the flames Alone

I clear my throat to speak But I can't say a word Not one

This girl knew my name On a wooden bridge It's cold

Woke up on the floor With poison in my blood And I'm missing you

My old wooden chair In amongst the crowd Alone

If I can't tap my foot To an honest tune I'll run

I took a leap Across the creek The water rose

Woke up in the sea With poison in my blood And I'm missing you