

Bare Minimum

Anna Clendening

Don't even kiss anymore
Just say, "I love you" 'cause you think you're supposed to You're always coming up short
And you got every excuse now, don't you?

Do you even listen when I speak?
'Cause I've been telling you just what I need
A little more conversation, a little communication
Why is that so hard to see?

You're giving me the bare, bare, bare, bare minimum
All you're giving me
Nothing but silence, I'm always trying
I thought you wanted this, what happened? You're never there
I used to think you cared, but you've given up
You're giving me the bare, bare minimum

You think I ask for too much
Don't want the world, I just want you to want me
How come you're so out of touch? (So out of touch)
We share a bed but I'm still feeling lonely

Do you even listen when I speak?
'Cause I've been telling you just what I need
A little more conversation, a little communication
Why is that so hard to see?

You're giving me the bare, bare, bare, bare minimum
All you're giving me
Nothing but silence, I'm always trying
I thought you wanted this, what happened? You're never there
I used to think you cared, but you've given up
You're giving me the bare, bare minimum

You're giving me the bare, bare, bare, bare, bare minimum
All you're giving me is the bare, bare, bare, bare, bare minimum
m
All you're giving me is the bare, bare, bare, bare minimum
All you're giving me is the bare, bare, bare minimum
