

Next Generation

Anna Graceman

They carry wars in their pockets
Unleashing them wherever they go
Invisible lines is what separates us
And those lines were established long ago

Believe in what you can be not what you are today
Maybe the world isn't as bad as we portray

We the next generation
Take hands with every nation
Put the differences aside
All the glory and the pride
Standing side by side
At least we know we tried
Send this message world wide
We'll change this world, together

Modern weapons in the making
Confusing and conflicting our minds
We try to blame it on each other
But the fault is no one but humankind's

Believe in what you can be not what you are today
Maybe the world isn't as bad as we portray

We the next generation
Take hands with every nation
Put the differences aside
All the glory and the pride
Standing side by side
At least we know we tried
Send this message world wide
We'll change this world, together

Maybe if we stopped thinking about ourselves
Maybe we could stop and try to help someone else
Maybe if we thought of a simple plan
Maybe we could start, all over again
I know it seem so hard but I hope you know it's right
And though it might seem hard, let's give up this fight

We the next generation
Take hands with every nation
Put the differences aside
All the glory and the pride
Standing side by side
At least we know we tried
Send this message world wide
We'll change this world, together