

Unexpected

Anna Graceman

If you know about this place
You will find me hiding
Cause when you think the coast is clear
Have you lost what you were finding
Like a storm of sunny rain drops
And a world of bitter cotton candy

When you think you know what's next
Expect the unexpected

Seeing such scary things
Wishing it was only a dream
Like a dragon without wings
My life is a shallow deep blue sea
Like a song without a melody
Like a home without a heart

When you think you know what's next
Expect the unexpected

A triple rainbow of black and white
I'll hug hello to say good-bye
The darkest day and the brightest night
I know the answers but I still ask why
Like a soft whisper turns into a scream
Standing in a crowd but I'm still all alone

When you think you know what's next
Expect the unexpected

Cross the waters of my heart
I'm at the end but it feels like the start
Drowning in the deserts of my tears
I'm so afraid I have to face my fears
A bad dream is my reality

We're living in a world without any peace
When you hear about what goes on around
You wish you could help some how
You never know what's coming next
Should expect the unexpected
