

Full Moon

Anne Clark

Far away a niche puts itself in deeper space
We slip almost unknowing into a deeper darker place
Inside my dreams they build business machines
Nothing here is ever what it seems
In the land of haven't got a clue
I'm not to blame for anything I do
In the land of couldn't give a fuck
You pay your money and leave the rest to luck

The man in the moon is watching you
And me and everything we do
Life on mars, a stairway to the stars
Cheap flights, fast food, flash cars
Worlds collide, states divide
Choose your side, landslides
Third rock from the sun, it's only just begun
For you and me and everyone

I push my head into a deep blue pillow of sound
Music's echo of time, resonating 'round
Comet trails like horses tails ride in endless night
Beyond the coming morning, beyond the coming lights
All around us a great big book of wonder
The earth we walk, the sky we're under
These moments are mine, they belong to to me
I bathe in lunar waters, sea of tranquility

The man in the moon is watching you
And me and everything we do
Life on mars, a stairway to the stars
Cheap flights, fast food, flash cars
Worlds collide, states divide
Choose your side, landslides
Third rock from the sun, it's only just begun
For you and me and everyone

The scorched earth catches fire, it finds no relief
Can we find it in ourselves ever to conceive
As cities choke and islands disappear in smoke
That maybe what we're doing in some way could provoke
Although all forms are shifting as nature makes its way
The speed of change we're forcing tears our souls away
The moon is full, the river's high
What will become of you and I?

The man in the moon is watching you
And me and everything we do
Life on mars, a stairway to the stars
Cheap flights, fast food, flash cars
Worlds collide, states divide
Choose your side, landslides
Third rock from the sun, it's only just begun
For you and me and everyone

The man in the moon is watching you
And me and everything we do
Life on mars, a stairway to the stars

Cheap flights, fast food, flash cars
Worlds collide, states divide
Choose your side, landslides
Third rock from the sun, it's only just begun
For you and me and everyone