

Deena and Jim, mostly hated themselves for things
Things they've never said, stuck in their heads
They're walking on pins and needles and mental strength
Until the clouds began to rain

Someday they will learn the golden rule
Of love and care instead of being a fool
And there was nothing else to do but say goodbye
From the tears that fell and this rage inside
Deep down they felt an empty space
And realized that they could not replace
Something in a secret way finally helped them see
That without this love they will both be free

Free from the lies, free from growing pain
Free from being the fools they became
'Cause they were letting the anger in 'til it built up
And now they lighten their heavy hearts

Someday they will learn the golden rule
Of love and care instead of being a fool
And there was nothing else to do but say goodbye
From the tears that fell and this rage inside
Deep down they felt an empty space
And realized that they could not replace
Something in a secret way finally helped them see
That without this love they will both be free