

It's Over

Ant Saunders

Oh, I hoped this day would come
The stars have finally aligned
I've been so far down
So down now I'm so high
I've been so high
Mental scars
Constantly concealed
And I never thought after so long I've fought
That they could be healed
When I let down my shield

You know what you've achieved
From those feelings you receive
When it's over
Over
And you know what you've achieved
From those feelings of relief
When it's over
Now I'm bolder
It's all worth it when it's over

We used to cover it all with some Neosporin and band-aids
To hide the cuts and the scrapes of every different shade
And we ain't saying much when they start coming from the more unspeakable ways
They be like, "It's just a phase", but you just need to find a safe space
Like hide and seek but we stay still like freeze tag
And we don't wanna make a move, we just stay in our bag
Some of us get put in a body bag
But we ain't got no room for that
I'm disregardin' my youth, yeah, I'm just speakin' the truth
Like Clark Kent when he steps out of the phone booth
I wanna help us all to feel absolute
Turnin' roads so rocky right into roads so smooth
I used to get looked down upon
Like that's how it was meant to be
Now I got hella people saying that they wish that they were me
And all these women talking 'bout how they wanna get with me
And all these random ass people playing songs by me
We got a pact just like Batman and Robin
And there's some heroes out there like in the city of Gotham
You think these scars will bring you down to the bottom
Like the Joker, just gotta be like, "You wanna know how I got 'em?"

As long as we keep movin', movin' (As cliché as it seems)
We'll always be improvin', -provin' (We can't desert our dreams)

We'll always be improvin', -provin' (We can't desert our dreams)
(We keep on fallin' down but we just get back up again)
(We keep on fallin' down but it's all worth it in the end)
(So many there, many care, somebody cares, somebody)
