The Walk Among The Ruins

First I'm too shocked to see What is surrounding me The place that wasn't Supposed to be is still here What was that trip?

The same old statue is watching Door lonely dreams demolished The green queen now has begun Her total recovery

From this dead town emanates Such powerful destiny The wind in tall grasses Is kind caressing my body

I've been running for so long Why don't I just rest a bit Tender cushion is waiting For me, in this field I just can close my eyes

Anthropia