

Cold Bones

Any Given Sin

Here's to the ones who held hearts to the flames
Here's to the ones who shared our triumph and pain
If I could find the words, I'd chisel them in stone
But for now I'll touch the ones that mark the place you rest al one

Can I hold on without you my friend?
I always thought that you and I would ride until the end
I have cold bones, the light has gone dim
Can I hold on without you my friend?

I have no gold, no power nor fame
And I bring no temples to raise in your name
But if I could live for you the way you did for me
Need no wealth, for love itself will mark your memory

Can I hold on without you my friend?
I always thought that you and I would ride until the end
I have cold bones, the light has gone dim
Can I hold on without you my friend?

I have cold bones, cold bones
Cold bones, cold bones

You were the warmth, you're the spring to my fall
But now sets a cold wind that covers it all
I try to move but my body won't budge
From these cold, cold bones

Can I hold on without you my friend?
I always thought that you and I would ride until the end

I have cold, cold bones
Cold, cold bones

Can I hold on without you my friend?
I always thought that you and I would ride until the end
I have cold bones, the light has gone dim
Can I hold on without you my friend?

I have cold bones, cold bones
Cold bones, cold bones
