Suddenly, I looked up to the hazy moon in the night sky
Pretty little flower, you've blossomed beautifully
Even if the time passes by
However far away you are, I'll cross time and carry it to you

Scattered clouds drifting away
Chasing after ripples on the water
Even without touching them, I find myself enchanted
Within the fleeting shadows

A breeze blows over the water's surface aimlessly
The reflection of the sky on the water is disturbed
Wishing to change
But if I reach out my hands, it just overflows from them

Waiting for someone who will never come back with these feelings
Passing the nights aimlessly
In my heart is a scenery that won't go away it makes me give a smile untainted by anything

"Though I don't want to live on in the floating world, if I remain here..."
Feelings I shouldn't have known of, they burn inside, shining brilliantly

When the dawn reaches my heart
A beating sound signals a new day, but it only confuses me
Though you might be close to me in my dreams
In reality, you're so very far away

The memories that I can't get away from are playing in my mind now
Even if those promises will never come true
They echo deep inside
Simply flapping their wings until they're exhausted

The flower petals that flutter down
Call out, beyond my dream, to wake me up
New meetings, they create music it stirs something deep inside, through the cracks in my heart

"Though I don't want to live on in the floating world, if I remain here..."
Even though I can't see it, I chase after, pushing my way through it shines in the gaps between the clouds

"Though I don't want to live on in the floating world, if I remain here... let me remember only this midnight and this moonrise"
