Your pale blue skirt trails over the hill bathed in twilight
I thought about it absentmindedly that forever must be something like this

"Love always ends someday," you muttered with a distant look
I pretended I didn't hear I wonder if you noticed

Time after time the cherry blossom petals swayed and danced on the wind
Even if time passes, there are feelings here that won't change

I want to see you I want to see you
I'll try to hold you close in a dream
Chasing after you chasing after you
I'm wandering around deep in a maze
I want to see you I want to see you
Not you from a dream, but the real you
I can't to see you I can't to see you
I'm drowning with the thought that I have nowhere to go

Shoulder to shoulder, we looked up at the planetarium in the sky
A certain star is still floating somewhere and disappearing

Dormant feelings in my heart remain unspoken forever
It'd be good if I gently hold in a sigh and breath it out

Even if you're swept away by the wind and waves of the passing seasons
In between the past and future, the memories won't come apart

I want to see you I want to see you
I'll try to hold you close in a dream
It won't disappear it won't disappear
The lingering scent is still in the air
I want to see you I want to see you
Not you from a dream, but the real you
It's so painful it's so painful
That pale blue is blurring
